Structure, governance and management

Type of governing document

The Committee is a charitable, unincorporated organisation and the purpose and administration arrangements are set out in our constitution.

Trustee recruitment and appointment

The trustees are appointed and reappointed at the annual general meeting.

Objectives and activities

Charitable purposes

The main aims of the ATC are:

- To promote and encourage among young people a practical interest in aviation and the RAF
- To provide training which will be useful in the Service and civilian life
- To foster the spirit of adventure and develop the qualities of leadership and good citizenship

The purpose of the civilian committee is to support the squadron by:

- Giving direct help and advice to formations in performance of their tasks
- Providing a means of ensuring that squadron's views are properly represented at Air Cadet Council, Regional and Wing levels
- Fostering association between ATC formations and their associated communities
- Raising, controlling and accounting for non-profit funds in support of the squadron.

Summary of the main activities in relation to these objects

There are many ways of meeting the Air Cadet aims and objectives:

- Learning through structured lectures supported by first hand experience
- Entering organisational wide competition in a variety of activities including drill, first aid and sport
- Taking part in Duke of Edinburgh Award Scheme
- Attending residential camps

APPENDIX 1

Achievements and performance

Summary of the main achievements of the charity during the financial period

It has been another busy and successful year for the squadron, with continued growth and a strong programme of activities and opportunities for our cadets. Throughout the year, cadets have represented the squadron at a wide range of local, Wing and national activities, while our staff and cadet NCO team have continued to deliver a varied programme of training at squadron level.

Recruitment has remained positive, supported by our links with local secondary schools and regular recruitment throughout the year. We have continued to develop our NCO team, giving our more experienced cadets increasing responsibility for leading activities, supporting training and helping new cadets settle into squadron life. This remains an important part of developing their own leadership skills while passing their experience and knowledge on to the next generation of cadets.

Cadets have continued to progress through the organisation's progressive training syllabus across Blue, Bronze, Silver and Gold levels, alongside opportunities including first aid, leadership, Duke of Edinburgh's Award, adventure training and other specialist activities. These opportunities allow cadets to develop practical skills, confidence, teamwork and leadership beyond our regular parade-night training.

The squadron has also maintained a strong presence within the local community, supporting a number of local events throughout the year. This not only allows us to support the community around us but also gives our cadets valuable opportunities to take responsibility, work as a team and represent the squadron and wider organisation.
